"Susan raises our awareness by presenting a balanced overview of the difficult topic of sexual abuse. She balances reality statistics with personal stories; seriousness with life-giving energy. I recommend this workshop for parents and community leaders."

SpeakingOut Partnered With KARM

"Childhood Sexual Abuse is a horrible crime that many of the homeless men and women who come to KARM try to cover up with drugs, alcohol and every other kind of mind numbing addiction. In the general public, 1 out of every 5 boys and 1 out of every 3 girls will be sexually abused by their 18th birthday (Mothers Against Sexual Abuse statistics). They suffer greatly from the confusion, shame and pain caused by the betrayal of trust and authority that adults have with children, especially relationships of family and friends (95% of children know the perpetrator). Susan's passion, personal experience, and extensive knowledge will raise your awareness and help prevent and heal this frequently "secret suffering". I highly recommend "A Safe Place" Workshop for every parent, grandparent, pastor, teacher and everyone else who is in a position to protect children from the devastation of Childhood Sexual Abuse. We praise God for our partnership with SpeakingOut against Child Sexual Abuse, Inc. in making our Knoxville community a safe place for all our citizens, especially our children."

Straight Talk about Child Sexual Abuse

The Host of Straight Talk... Marla Higginbothom invited Susan Suafoa-Dinino, President/Founder of SpeakingOut to be the Guest Speaker on Straight Talk Radio (WKXV/AM 900) on April 5th in Knoxville, TN.

This was a Wonderful Opportunity to Raise Awareness on the crime of Child Sexual Abuse in America during the month of April... National Child Abuse Prevention Month!

Awareness & Prevention is the Key to making a difference! Child Sexual Abuse is a crime. It's time we stop pushing this issue under the rug & aid in the prevention of it. We must act & help those in need, to include child & adult survivors that have already been violated. That is our responsibility.

Thank you Marla for inviting SpeakingOut to sit down with you for some Straight Talk.

A Survivor is SpeakingOut

My name is Melani Marquez and I am a Child Sexual Abuse survivor. About a year ago, I finally built up the courage to confront the issue of Child Sexual Abuse in my family. As I anticipated, the news did not go over well with the older generation. Many of them felt that I was "airing out my dirty laundry" instead of "taking accountability" for what happened to me, as if it were my fault. I was called vicious names by several Aunts and accused of dishonoring my family. Despite the blows I endured, I insisted that my generation talk to their children about sexual abuse prevention. As it later turned out, I uncovered that sexual abuse had been a generational problem in my family because my predecessors never talked to each other about their abuse nor did they stress prevention to their children. In the end, I learned that there were a total of 13 members in my family who experienced sexual abuse or was a witness to it. I personally found this number to be alarming considering the small size of my family. What's more, the children who did come forth to admit their abuse were quickly dismissed as liars. Their alleged abusers were never confronted nor was there any intervention to ensure their conduct was not ongoing. I came to realize that if this tragedy happened to my family, it could also be happening to other families who are afraid of breaking their silence of abuse. Since confronting my family, I've made it my personal mission to spread awareness for Child Sexual Abuse and provide resources to parents for prevention. I accomplish this through my social networking sites such as Twitter, Facebook and Myspace. I also take the opportunity to share my message with other parents during casual conversations. I often acknowledge the sensitivity of the topic but also stress the importance of talking about it so their children don't become victimized like I was. So far, I'm glad to report how receptive and active parents have been to taking preventative measures. Apart from this, I am also a member on the volunteer screening committee for my church. I have the responsibility to screen, interview applicants and ensure proper background checks are done before volunteers are able to work with children. Just recently, I participated in a Child Abuse Prevention Fair in honor of "Child Abuse/Sexual Assault Awareness Month". The event was held on April 17th at Travis Air Force Base, CA where I reside and am a member of the military community. I was fortunate to work right along side the Family Advocacy faculty who displayed an informational booth regarding Child Abuse prevention. Among the resource brochures available to the community was the SpeakingOut pamphlet on "What Every Parent Should Know". I'd like to thank Susan and the SpeakingOut organization for providing this resource online so I could continually spread my message about Child Sexual Abuse prevention in a nonthreatening and sensitive manner. Thank you for fighting the good fight so there will be one less child affected by this senseless and horrific crime. I'm confident that by continually spreading awareness for this cause, we can create a zero-tolerance for Child Sexual Abuse in our society. God bless. Melani Marguez, Travis AFB, CA

A "No More Secrets" Walk

"A No More Secrets Walk was held in Salt Lake City, Utah on Saturday April 17th. This was a family friendly walk to prevent child abuse. Following the 5K walk there was free food and entertainment, along with numerous prize drawings. For the kids there was face painting, a fish pond, animal balloons, and other activities. We had a great time and we love making a difference.

The purpose of the walk was to create awareness about child abuse, and to introduce plans for A Healing Place. This will be a beautiful park in Salt Lake City which will focus on the healing of child abuse victims. For more information go to http://ahealingplacemonument.org."
